

24 Things You Can Find from Cemetery Records Besides Tombstone Inscriptions

Cemetery records and cemeteries in general are a very large part of our family history and are a significant pursuit for many genealogists. Sometimes, the information on a headstone is the only information available for certain ancestors.

There are different types of cemeteries. Just being buried in a specific cemetery may provide a clue to ethnicity, religion, military status, or lodge association.

- Family Cemetery - Usually located on land owned by a family; may have multiple generations of family members interred.
- Church Cemetery - Owned and managed by a church. May be on church grounds or nearby.
- Ethnic Cemetery - Provided to support a specific religion or ethnicity.
- Military Cemetery - Reserved for veterans and possibly their spouse.
- Public Cemetery - Typically owned and operated by a city or county.
- Mass Grave - A common grave for multiple people; generally the indigent or those who perished in a disaster.
- Commercial Cemetery - For profit cemeteries. May be owned or affiliated with a funeral home or mortuary.

The tombstone often provides more information than just the name of the deceased, the birth date and/or year, and the death date and/or year. Also, there is a lot of information “behind the scenes” that can be very valuable in your research.
