What Year Where Statewide Death Registrations Required

If you are looking for death certificates, you need to know the timing of each state's requirements. Each state in the U.S. started requiring death registrations in different years. Usually, some types of records were created prior to the official state laws, either at the county, city, or town levels. But state records weren't required until a law was passed. Furthermore, even though registrations and certificates were mandated, general compliance was not achieved by all entities for just a few years or even a few decades in some instances.

Here is a table that lists the year that death registrations and certificates were required for each state.

| State | Year | State | Year |

| Alaska | 1913 | Montana | 1907 |

Genealogy Information in City Directories

City and business directories are available online from all over the U.S. and Canada and are what I consider another important (and underutilized) set of information that can assist you in advancing your family history and genealogy research. So, what kinds of directories are available to the researcher? Naturally city and business directories, but also telephone directories, and alumni, farm, lodge, rural, and social directories.

What kind of information do they include?

- Full names, including middle names
- Spouse name
- Occupation
- Employer
- Widows and adult children at home
- Phone numbers
- Whether a woman is a widow (including the name of her husband)
- List of marriages and deaths from the previous year
- Abbreviations used in the directory
- Maps
- Street Locators and street name changes
- City History
- Bus routes
- Statistics
- Advertisements
- Businesses
- Index to advertisers
- Government Offices
- Government Officials
- Churches
- Cemeteries
- Schools
- Colleges and Universities
- Funeral homes
- Post Offices
- Courts
- Hospitals
- Firehouses
- Police locations
- Military installations
- Associations, clubs, lodges, and societies
- Newspapers

Now with this abundance of information, why wouldn't you use these gold mines in your research?

Unearthing The Distinction: Graveyards Vs. Cemeteries

In the realm of death and remembrance, two terms have been frequently interchanged: graveyards and cemeteries. While they both serve as final resting places for the departed, there are subtle yet distinct differences between the two. Let's shed some light on their unique characteristics and unravel the secrets hidden beneath the tombstones. This article is reprinted with permission from Advantage Archives.

Graveyards: The Realm of the Past:

Graveyards, as their name suggests, have deep historical roots. They evoke a sense of antiquity, often associated with the distant past. These sacred grounds were primarily established adjacent to churches or places of worship, reflecting the deep connection between religion and mortality. Graveyards were community-centric spaces, serving as the final resting place for local residents.

In their early days, graveyards were humble and simplistic, characterized by irregularly arranged graves. The passage of time, however, witnessed the growth and expansion of many graveyards, often leading to overcrowding and limited space for future burials. The ancient charm of graveyards lies in their ability to transport us to a bygone era, where history whispers through weathered headstones and time-worn epitaphs.

Cemeteries: The Land of Eternal Rest:

Cemeteries, on the other hand, emerged as a response to the limitations posed by graveyards. With the rise of urbanization and the need for more organized burial spaces, cemeteries came into existence. Unlike graveyards, cemeteries were designed with careful planning, meticulous layouts, and dedicated sections for various religious denominations.

Cemeteries were established as serene and peaceful landscapes, embodying the concept of eternal rest. They often feature manicured lawns, grandiose mausoleums, and carefully sculpted monuments that stand as tributes to the departed. With larger areas and a systematic approach to burials, cemeteries offered a more efficient environment, accommodating diverse communities and providing space for future generations.

The Difference:

While both graveyards and cemeteries fulfill the essential purpose of providing a final resting place, the crucial disparity lies in their historical context, organization, and ambiance.

Historical Significance: Graveyards carry the weight of time, resonating with a rich historical backdrop, whereas cemeteries tend to be more modern in their origins.

Spatial Layout: Graveyards often exhibit an organic and haphazard arrangement of graves, reflecting their humble origins, while cemeteries feature carefully planned and organized sections, reflecting the changing needs of society.

Community Connection: Graveyards are closely associated with religious institutions and the local community, fostering a sense of belonging and communal remembrance. Cemeteries, while still significant to the community, have a broader and more inclusive approach.

Aesthetic Appeal: Graveyards exude an aged and weathered charm, showcasing the passage of time and the embrace of nature. Cemeteries, with their well-maintained landscapes and architectural beauty, create an atmosphere of peace and reverence.

Graveyards, with their historical resonance and community ties, remind us of the people who came before us, while cemeteries provide tranquil spaces for eternal rest and reflection.

As we navigate the ever-changing landscape of death and remembrance, let us honor the past and embrace the present. Whether it be a graveyard or a cemetery, these sacred grounds stand as testaments to our collective history and the timeless cycle of life and death.

I have changed my Video platform from YouTube. It just wasn't providing what I needed from a modern Video platform. It also was getting too "junked-up" with a lot of superfluous "stuff". Enter Humix.

Place Finders

Do you often find yourself wanting or needing to know what county a city is located in or what places might be found in a specific county?

You could do a Google search but what if you had a handy list that included a list of all the cities, other places, and ghost towns that identified their corresponding county along with a list of the counties in a state that listed all of the places in that county?

What is a place? Besides cities and towns, you will find that the names of other places may vary from state to state. Most states have Census Designated Places, Unincorporated communities, Indian Reservations, and ghost towns. Other places may be known as villages, hamlets, historic districts, townships, boroughs, municipalities, and more.

Each state has a list of all the places in the state and their corresponding county. Each place has a link to a page that includes information about that place. The page may include geographical information, historical information, current information about the place and its surroundings, and much more.

Included also for each state, is a Downloadable PDF with two lists:

- A list of places and their corresponding county
- A list of counties with the places that are in that county

Help Your Ancestors Live Forever - Write Your Family History And Write Your Own History While You're At It

One of my goals in my personal genealogy is to make sure that my ancestors are remembered. Many had no descendants, so absolutely no one alive remembers them. That's sad to me, which is why I created a couple of family history websites. But recently I have been seeking even better ways to memorialize their lives. Their stories are important to be documented, which might explain why I am such a fan of newspaper research.

In any case, here are a few tools that I have discovered that provide a unique means to memorialize our ancestors.

And guess what? We need to produce our own autobiographies. We aren't getting any younger and memories do fade.
